Caylah Lunning ‘19
Specialization in Ecological Systems

My Environmental Studies Degree prepared me well for my position as an Environmental Biologist with EnviroVector Environmental Consulting LLC. My work entails wetland delineations, wildlife and critical area evaluations, biological evaluations, mitigation research and report writing for agency evaluation.

What I love most about my job is being out in the field collecting data, exploring various sites and helping improve Washington State’s environment.

Something I draw from my EVST degree is the experience I gained in my environmental policy classes. Learning how to understand different jurisdictional policies has been crucial to my ability to communicate with different environmental agencies, city and county heads. The various environmental field work courses prepared me for my current role when I’m out in the field. Also, the ecology classes I took helped me understand the ecological system in Washington State.
